“It’s Your Organization’s Budget.....Control It.”

Gain Better Control Over Budget Development

To be truly effective, your budgeting process needs to be fast, easy and collaborative. You can use the Web to collaborate with department managers in the next office or at a remote site, compare budgets to actuals in real-time, and gain control over expenses by integrating budget information throughout Great Plains. You are able to gain immediate control of the entire budget process and quickly adjust a plan to take advantage of new business opportunities and challenges.

Common concerns that have been identified related to budgeting include: cumbersome and manual budgeting/planning processes, inaccurate budgeting data, and difficulties to collaborate when one budget impacts another. Microsoft Dynamics removes the pains associated with traditional budgeting methods by offering an intuitive application that solves the problems associated with the budgeting process.

Automate Grant Management

Within public sector organizations, managing grants is a crucial but often a challenging task. Strict guidelines and regulations, as well as careful tracking of funds, continually place a strain on staff—yet demonstrating accountability to sponsors is critical to obtaining future funding.

Automated grant management lets you keep a closer eye on daily transactions and expenditures and manage grants more efficiently than manual tracking. Timely and accurate reporting helps ensure your organization is meeting the strict regulations inherent to grant sponsorship and makes it easier to demonstrate accountability to your sponsor.

Centralize Grant Information

Consider the hours spent searching for and filing grant information when you don't have a centralized location for information. Multiple users with varying information can compromise the assurance of data integrity, consistency, and accountability. Gathering and updating scattered information takes valuable administrative time, and jeopardizes the accuracy of your grant information. Automated grant management can centralize grant information, helping you ensure that it's secure, accessible, and up-to-date for improved transaction control.

Make Better, More Effective Decisions

Automated grant management makes "real-time" details of grant transactions and allocations available any time. Your organization can make faster, more proactive decisions instead of reacting to situations, resulting in better use of grant monies and resources.

Ensure Compliance with Regulations

Most grants under a federal program must follow strict guidelines and regulations. Tight expense control, along with the frequent and detailed timely reports required by sponsors, can put a great amount of pressure on an organization. Failure to properly track and report grant monies could jeopardize future funding from the sponsor. Automated grant management tracks accounting transactions to specific grants and programs, making it possible to allocate costs based on grant and program budgets. By automating workflow, you can ensure compliance with sponsors' guidelines, closely monitor your grant performance, and reduce reconciliation work at month-end or year-end.
